A strong cold front will usher in very dry air today as relative humidity plummets between 25 to 35 percent with winds gusting out of the north up to 30+ mph at times. As a result, a Red Flag Warning is in effect with the threat of rapid start and spread of wildfires.

Red Flag Warning

11 AM Friday to 1 AM Saturday

RED FLAG
WARNING

Key Message

Elevated fire danger will exist Friday afternoon and evening across inland southeast Texas and central and southwest Louisiana. North winds of 10-20 mph with gusts to 35 mph will be possible, along with humidity dropping below 30%. These conditions may persist late Friday evening as humidity will be slow to recover overnight.

Hazards

Fires can spread rapidly in these conditions. Outside burning is discouraged except by experienced fire personnel.

Actions

Avoid activities that cause open flames or sparks. Properly discard of cigarettes.
